The report that certain French and American capitalists have entered into an agreement to lay another Atlantic cable, and that the necessary funds for the undertaking have nearly all been guaranteed, is a matter of interest both to newspapers and the public. Experience has shown that it is no child's play to successfully connect the two continents by cable, but what has been done can be repeated in spite of obstacles. Healthy competition may be expected to work as well in the business of transmitting news from Europe to America as in the other industries to which men devote their time, money and energy.

It has been well observed that atheism and superstition are by no means opposites and are frequently companions. Unbelievers in France and Germany, often distinguished men, furnished the most numerous followers of wizards, ghost-raisers, and such like, even before the time of Cagliostro, and the same has been the case ever since the deceptions of that impostor were so successfully practised. Some of the atheists in the court of Frederick of Prussia, were afraid of the dark, and others could not conceal their uneasiness when the company numbered thirteen. The same truth, that when old faiths are banished new ones apparently more difficult of acceptance are often embraced in the reaction, is exemplified te-day in England. It is said that large num bers of scepties including some men of prominence in various branches of natural science have become believers in spiritualism.

In a recent address before the firemen's convention at Cleveland, attention was called to the extent to which the danger of the occurrence of fires had been increased by many so-called modern improvements. The large buildings devoted exclusively to merchandise, which have taken the place of smaller ones, occupied in part as the dwellings of the preprietors, who sold their goods at wholesale below stairs and dwelt with their families above: the openings through floors to admit light to the otherwise darkened centers of the enlarged buildings; the mansard roofs; the elevators; the multiplication of tenants in uilding devoted to merchandise or manufac turing; the hot air furnaces, and the ready friction match, are specified as being among the discoveries, practices or improvements of modern times by which the duties of the fireman have become more arduous and more dangerous. It is largely through these increased facilities for causing and spreading fires that the number is now so large and the amount of property destroyed so great. The annual loss in the United States from this cause is nearly $100,000,000, and there are on an average 180 fires every day.

The success of the New York experiment of a boarding-house for working women, modeled after a home and not after a hotel, has encouraged the idea of making a similar trial on a larger scale. It is proposed to erect a commodious building, with rooms graded in price from five dollars and a half to three dollars and a half a week, and capable of accommodating a hundred boarders. Though every one will wish that the scheme may be found practicable and may have abundant success it does not follow from the good fortune of the cosy, cheerful little establishment now in operation that the experiment of a larger institution for the same purpose will have a like re-

The Missouri democrats are divided on the money question, some still holding out for hard money, while the majority, like the party e'sewhere, appear to be drifting into greenbackism. The influence of Thomas H. Benton seems to be dying out. "Old Bullion" is too soon forgotten. One of his sayings may bring profitable reflection to the workingmen as well as to the Missouri democrats: "If I were going to establish a workingman's party it should be on the basis of hard money-a hard money party against a paper party."

A decision of much importance to the public has recently been made by Judge Dillon in the United States Court at St. Louis. It is that money received by a bank after its failure does not belong among its assets, but is a trust fund for the benefit of the one making the deposit, and should be repaid to him in full.

Now that the straight-ont democrats of Massachusetts have nailed their flag to the mast, the various political factions seem to have pretty well defined their positions. All that remains for them is to define their strength. There is, however, one class of voters, the advocates of woman's rights, who have not yet openly declared themselves for either of the leading candidates. Talbot is an open and notorious woman's righter, and Butler has helped to carry through Congress legislation authorizing women to practice law in United States courts, and has joined in defeating various attempts to disfranchise the women of Utah. The woman-suffragists could be happy with either. When invited to choose between them, they can only exclaim, "here's richness!" and hesitate. Whatever doubts may exist as to the result of the Massachusetts election, it may safely be predicted that the next governor will be a person more or less committed to the woman-suffrage idea.

In some inexplicable way a hard money man has been nominated for Congress by the Milwaukee democrats. This unexpected occurrence, in such discord with the spirit of the times, is ascribed by some to the intervention of providence and by others to a packed con-

A woman in Richmond, Ind., who died recently, had kept $3,000 in gold secreted for forty years. She didn't believe in banks .- [ Ex. existence in Indiana forty years ago which is open to-day, and able to pay back $3,000 deposited with it then?

If Zach Chandler can bring it about that lonely Congressman Williams, the only democrat on the Michigan congressional delegation, shall be left at home and a republican be sent in his place, the family humiliation resulting from the defeat of son-in-law Hale will be partially avenged. This thought nerves the ex-Secretary.
